ADVENTURE PARC SNOWDONIA

DISCIPLINE:

CONTAMINATED LAND, REMEDIATION

PROJECT DESCRIPTION

The centrepiece of the Adventure Parc is the Surf Snowdonia fresh water lagoon, in which artificial surf is generated. It is roughly the size of six football pitches, set in the Conwy Valley, North Wales and features a two-metre high barrelling wave that peels perfectly for more than 150 meters. The Adventure Parc also features a range of other facilities including glamping pods, a restaurant and various other indoor and outdoor leisure activities.

OUR ROLE

Conwy Adventure Leisure Ltd (CAL) and their contractors (D Morgan) built the Surf Snowdonia facility on a former Industrial site – an aluminium rolling and casting works which closed in 2007. Before they set to work it was a derelict, contaminated, brownfield wasteland with little prospect for development. TerraConsult undertook extensive site investigations, undertook the contaminated land assessment and made recommendations for the clean-up and redevelopment of the site.
